PROJECT MUSE® | books

Project MUSE is a trusted provider of authoritative humanities and social science content for the scholarly community. The MUSE platform brings together over 70,000 scholarly books from more than 140 distinguished university presses and related publishers, fully integrated for search and discovery with MUSE's nearly 700 respected scholarly journals.

Project MUSE Book Products

Project MUSE provides access to thousands of books across a large range of subjects within the humanities and social sciences. A wide variety of acquisition options makes it easy to build digital scholarly book collections to meet your institution's research needs and budget. Participating publishers select the titles they offer on the MUSE platform, and decide through which product models they will make their books available.

MUSE offers tiered pricing on Book Collections, providing value for all sizes and type of libraries. Our flexible Evidence-Based Acquisition and Single Title Purchasing options allow for selection of the books most in demand by researchers and faculty.

Book Collections

Book Collections are available in a variety of purchase options, including collections by Subject or by Area Studies, as Complete collections of all frontlist titles released on MUSE during a single publication year, Archive collections of backlist titles, and Supplemental collections of titles added to the MUSE platform after their initial publication year.

Subject Collections include titles in select subject areas from multiple publishers, grouped by year of publication, while Area Studies Collections bring together cross-disciplinary books that facilitate in-depth examination of various world regions. Some books included in the Complete Collections are not included in Subject or Area Studies Collections. These are offered only for those subjects and areas in which a critical mass of book titles is available. There is no duplication of titles among the Subject collections offered, nor duplication across any of the Area Studies collections. However, books in the Area Studies Collections may also appear in the Subject Collections, meaning that there may be some duplication if purchasing is conducted across the types of collections.

A small number of specially-themed book sets are also available as Series Collections.

Resources for Librarians

Project MUSE offers a variety of support materials for use at your institution. Order or download user guides, tutorials, posters, and promotional materials for distribution. Administrative tools, including usage statistics, holdings and MARC records, are also available.

To access these resources and more, visit: about.muse.jhu.edu/resources/

Single Title Book Purchasing

Many books in the MUSE collections are also offered for individual perpetual access purchase, and MUSE publishers make available for single title purchase a number of books that are not included in any of the collections. MUSE works with third parties to facilitate the purchasing of individual book titles, allowing libraries to acquire electronic books on MUSE through familiar, established channels. Publishers opt-in to participate in the single title sales program, select the books that will be available, and set the prices for single title purchasing.

Single title purchasing is currently available through GOBI Library Solutions from EBSCO, and via the OASIS Platform from ProQuest. Specific title availability information and pricing is accessible through these partners. Libraries are encouraged to contact their preferred vendor for more information on incorporating MUSE books in eApproval plans, receiving title notifications, and how to order individual titles.

Evidence-Based Acquisition

Evidence-Based Acquisition (EBA) of Books on Project MUSE provides libraries with an option to open up discovery and access for significant numbers of high quality scholarly books, allowing faculty and students to find and make use of the most relevant content for their research and teaching. The user experience is as if the institution already owns the book, with unlimited simultaneous usage, downloading and printing of DRM-free PDF chapters. The library can track which books are receiving the most use, and select for permanent acquisition those titles best suited for its collections. The access available via an EBA program also allows library subject selectors to more thoroughly review book selections recommended by faculty or approval profiles before making purchase decisions.

EBA programs may be tailored to meet specific library monograph collection development needs and budgets, through limiting the access pool by subject, publication year, publisher, or price. All books made available by the publisher for individual sale on the MUSE platform may also be included in EBA. Institutions interested in initiating an EBA program for MUSE books should contact muse@press.jhu.edu.

MUSE Books and Open Access

Project MUSE now hosts a growing collection of several thousand fully open access (OA) books, offering distinguished scholarly publishers a platform for their OA titles which ensures visibility, discoverability, and wide dissemination. A significant proportion of OA books on MUSE are offered in an adaptable HTML5 format, while the remainder appear as chapter-level PDFs, all with unlimited downloading and printing.

Books are made OA on MUSE through a variety of funding initiatives, including Knowledge Unlatched, NEH Humanities Open Book grants, TOME, and individual publisher programs. The publishers of the books determine the licensing terms under which the titles are made available.

OA books on MUSE are freely available to libraries and users around the world. The OA book content may be discovered using the standard platform tools and will appear in searches alongside chapters and articles from an institution's subscribed or purchased materials. Free MARC records are offered and metadata for the books is shared with a wide variety of industry partners.
